

Examining Reality TV NOTE: I Am against reality TV shows

Name of student

Name of University

Author's Note

In reality television, programs are documented apparently with unscripted real-life situations. The focus of reality TV shows is mostly on drama and personal conflict which was better than educating the viewers (Gray&Lotz, 2019). Certain articles and blogs give a clear vision about the reality show and its impact on the people is best to describe it. In some articles, it has been discussed how people went from survivor to reality shows. These articles will give the reason for people watching reality TV. Researchers have found the reason for enjoying reality TV shows. The article will also identify how much really is the reality TV shows. Thus, the article will finally bring a conclusion that will complete making the reader understand the reality show.

The ubiquity of reality show is that it does not need any introduction for any popular programs or characters. In one of the events for voting in the USA even the US president Barack Obama wasn't worried about presidential primary skirmishes of the Republican Party (Condry, 2017). On that day, in the Tonight Show, the president was sure that all the public are watching that show and he assures that he will wait until they voted off the island. One another case that can be considered was the Seattle Times that was entirely unrelated to reality TV.

Reality TV is though pervasive and popular show that has dominated the television landscape. It is very humiliating to get the watch by a group of people in the name of television. In recent years, reality shows are found to be very much profitable. They have achieved significant popularity and cultural prominence (Chalaby, 2016). The actual thing is reality TV is a made up act as it is not real. Most of the participants in the reality show are not made-up professionally but some are actually made up shows. They are generally applied for their own make-up. Most of the reality TV stars do plaster on make-up as compare to professional. For those who simply fall out of bed or filmed in bed with no copious amounts is completely a lie. There was a dramatical increase in the reality show that was impossible to avoid over the years. The platform that reality television brings the common man to the spotlight has an economical form of entertainment. Reality television provides some productive activities in a large amount.

It is very important to significantly influence the ethical lives of any form of popular culture. It is not simply a low culture or unworthy. Reality TV is complicated with a wide variety of programs (Fu, Ye & Xiang, 2016). The complexity is complicated due to the mixture of production techniques. The dramatic behind-the-scenes are confessionals for the shows like Big Brother, The Bachelors. Reality television is all about status. The Survivor has a more competitive theme that values vengeance.

Fake show that is shown in the Reality TV are the tricks that edit the conversation or interviews and produce something that is entirely false. For reality, show showmance is the romance (Doyle, 2018). There is a need for drama and excitement were people with relationships are just shown for the show. Reality television could gratify the psychological needs in two ways. In one the viewers feel more important than the ordinary people in the television shows.

The reality show was considered as the risk for the CBS that air in the summer. The official Survivor had an ushered era. Now a day there are hundreds of reality shows were almost in every year every channel is produced. It was examined that the Reality program is now the dominant force in every television. It was investigated that television has influenced the attitudes and viewers' perceptions (Scholz & Smith, 2016). They watch reality shows and analyze the influence of the show.

There is a wide range of ethical issues that have been required for automatic condemnation. The reality show actually presents the characters that are not seen on mainstream television. However, reality television has reinforced unethically the stereotypes class, race, and gender (De Solier, 2016). There are so many unexpected people that have amassed incredible popularity. The reality TV viewers have the desire to intrude on others through the private and embarrassing moment.

From the article, it could be concluded that Reality TV is unscripted, unplanned and unedited (Peddie, 2017). It is so real to the viewers that most teenagers could not identify whether the person reaction is real or act. People are being provided with ordinary portray for any unexpected situations for the television itself. People are filmed with hidden cameras. The show thus could just increase the TRP's. There are many youth and young adults who have now become addicted to the reality show. Thus, youth are physically and emotionally impact by such shows.

References

- Chalaby, J. K. (2016). The format age: Television's entertainment revolution. John Wiley & Sons.
- Condry, J. (2017). The psychology of television. Routledge.
- De Solier, I. (2016). Foodie makeovers: Public service television and lifestyle guidance. In Exposing lifestyle television (pp. 75-92). Routledge.
- Doyle, A. (2018). "Cops": Television Policing as Policing Reality. In Entertaining crime (pp. 103-124). Routledge.
- Fu, H., Ye, B. H., & Xiang, J. (2016). Reality TV, audience travel intentions, and destination image. Tourism Management, 55, 37-48.
- Gray, J., & Lotz, A. D. (2019). Television studies. John Wiley & Sons.
- Peddie, J. (2017). Augmented Reality: where we will all live. Springer.
- Scholz, J., & Smith, A. N. (2016). Augmented reality: Designing immersive experiences that maximize consumer engagement. Business Horizons, 59(2), 149-161.